So self centered thoughts continued... when I joined, one of the big attractions was not doing any clinical work. It's a paradox, I love my patients but I hate the process of treating them. As I already described, it's too stressful hearing about suicide, conflicts, pain illness and death all day long. I know I signed up for it but I truly didn't know what I was getting into. So far, I'm finding the work with Done very refreshing because I don't have that kind of stress from it.

So when I saw the thing about temporary license for NJ I assumed you were asking me (and other people) if we wanted to apply. I always want to help out so that part of me wants to say yes, but I think it would be against my better judgment. I found don't already know I will tell you now that I love to say that I don't even want to be a doctor at all, but a hummingbird photographer to make my living and perhaps science fiction writer on the side when my hands get too tired of pressing the shutter. What I'm trying to say with that ridiculous fantasy is that now that I have a "bite" on my creative writing I wouldn't forgive myself if I didn't try to take advantage of it, so I need to reserve significant time for that. Whether I make any money at all from that is completely irrelevant, it's all about getting readership.
